^{1/} Data Source: 2007 Q5 TANF Work Participation database as of September 30, 2008. The data include TANF Two-Parent and All Family cases.

^{2/} Child-Only cases are not included in WPR calculations. Pursuant to language in the Deficit Reduction Act, beginning in FFY 2007, parents (including those sanctioned or timed-out) living with an aided child are considered work-eligible and are no longer considered child-only cases for TANF work participation purposes.

^{3/} All Family work participation rules and requirements were used in the determination of "meeting" or "not meeting" the Federal Work Participation Requirements. Hourly requirements: Single Custodial Parent case with a child under 6--20 hours; other cases without a child under 6--30 hours.

^{4/} Teen parents satisfactorily attending secondary school or participating in 20 or more hours of education directly related to employment are also included in this category.

^{2/} All Family work participation rules and requirements were used in the determination of "meeting" or "not meeting" the Federal Work Participation Requirements. Hourly requirements: Single Custodial Parent case with a child under 6--20 hours; other cases without a child under 6--30 hours.

^{3/} Teen parents satisfactorily attending secondary school or participating in 20 or more hours of education directly related to employment are included in this category.

^{4/} The 1,442 cases in this category are meeting the federal requirement because they include at least one teen parent who: does not have a high school diploma; is not a single custodial parent; and is participating in secondary school or education directly related to employment.

^{5/} Of the 175,220 cases with no federal allowable work participation hours, less than one percent are participating in state-allowable work activities.

^{6/} Cases with over 20 hours of participation that are not meeting the work participation requirements participate in non-core activities (i.e., employment related training and school attendance) without sufficient core hours to apply toward the hourly participation requirement.
